MORRISBURG — On Nov. 6, the first event for the 100 Men of South Dundas raised $15,200 that was divided between two local organizations. Mark Lewis, a member of the organizing committee said the group started forming after the Canada Day celebration in Morrisburg. While Lewis said he had been thinking of the idea ever since the women's group began years ago, it was Wally Baker who said the idea out loud to a receptive group. From there, the 100 Men of South Dundas committee grew organically with some help from Janeen Wagemans of the 100 Women of South Dundas who provided names of people willing to help.

MOOSE CREEK — North Stormont Fire Station No. 4 in Moose Creek was a beehive of activity on Nov. 10 when an open house provided residents the opportunity to see Sparky the Fire Dog, enjoy a barbecue lunch, meet with local firefighters and view some of the newly acquired North Stormont Fire Services Equipment. Recently, two rescue trucks destined for NS Fire Station 3 and NS Fire Station 4, a new pumper tanker and some extraction tools were purchased.

The extraction tools include a set of cutters, spreader and hydraulic ram to be located in Station 4 (Moose Creek), with chief Dan Gauvin explaining Station 4 along with Station 3 in Avonmore respond to calls on portions of Highway 138. Gauvin continued, that the e-tools which run by battery with no hydraulic lines, are very efficient and were purchased with both municipal monies and funds raised by the Moose Creek Firefighter Association.

Senior captain Forgues of Station 4 seemed quite pleased with the arrival of the 2019 pumper tanker, made by Battlesield Industries in Vars and which will replace an older pumper tanker that has been removed from service in the NSFS. Forgues and Gauvin explained how the accredited superior tanker shuttle received by the North Stormont Fire Service in 2017 helps to keep insurance rates lower in the municipality. This accreditation is provided when a fire service demonstrates the ability to provide water coverage in non-hydrant areas in excess of 600 gal/minute over a two-hour period.

Standing proud

The Chesterville Remembrance Day ceremony brought out a big crowd of people to the Chesterville monument at the Veteran's Memorial Park on the morning of Sun., Nov. 11. The Colour Party followed Matt Goral who led the parade from the Marsden McLaughlin Funeral Home. The Colour Party flags blew proudly in the wind while the community of Chesterville took the time to remember those who served and gave the supreme sacrifice for their country.

CHESTERVILLE – Remembrance Day services throughout Stormont and Dundas brought hundreds of people to join in the recognition and remembrance of the Canadians who served during armed conflicts including the First World War, Second World War, the Korean War and Afghanistan.

This year's Remembrance Day was also the centennial of Armistice Day where bells rung to announce the end of the Great War.

In 100 years, a community can see roughly three to four generations of children. With the passing of so much time, now more than ever it is important to share stories, learn history and remember the tragedies and lessons learned from the First World War.

The significant turnouts at each of the local ceremonies was a testament to these community efforts to show their respect for those who lost their lives serving the country in the hope of a future, of peace.

100 Men Who Care

The committee launched the website in August and had 100 men register by the end of September. In October, the registrants took off getting up to 120 before the event. Unfortunately, not all who registered were able to attend, but that didn't stop the numbers from growing up to 152 on the night of as more men joined the party right at the doors of the legion.

With 152 men attending the event, the group was able to raise $15,200 and donate it to the two winning charities within a couple of hours. Thanks to the generosity of the Morrisburg Legion for donating their hall and Valu-Mart and the McIntosh Inn for providing some snacks, the event was cost free. "It all went very quickly and well," said Lewis. "We even had some snacks leftover that we donated to the legion."

On the night of, 12 different charities and organizations attended the event to pitch their projects in the hopes of receiving the funds. Remaining true to the 100 tradition, each presenter was given three minutes to appeal to the crowd. Afterwards, the votes were tallied and the winners were announced.

In first place, the Canadian Cancer Society and the SDG Wheels of Hope program were awarded with $5,200 and in second place, the Seaway District High School was awarded $10,000 for their Learning Commons Room/Library.

Project applicant and Canadian Cancer Society fundraising specialist Allison St. Jean was the presenter for the Wheels of Hope program. She explained that she got involved through Eric Duncan, committee member of the North Dundas 100 Men.

Wheels of Hope is a volunteer service that provides cancer patients with rides to and from their appointments when family and friends aren't available to help out. While the program has many wonderful volunteers, St. Jean recognized that there are significant gaps in the South Dundas area where there is only one volunteer driver, yet there were 176 trips to cancer related appointments last year. "It was the perfect place to make the pitch," said St. Jean.

Without local drivers, there are added costs to bring in drivers from the surrounding areas, especially Cornwall. With the funds, St. Jean said the program can grow awareness to recruit more drivers in SDG and help cover the costs of the program; those costs include mileage and parking, rigorous training and background checks for the drivers.

One of the best parts of the evening, aside from winning St. Jean said, was leaving with a few volunteer drivers. "The message really resonated with people," she said. "I am extremely grateful and it was incredible to see that two groups were successful."

The second successful group was Seaway District High School. SDHS council co-chairperson Sandra Cummins explained that the project for upgrading the Learning Commons Room came about during the October council meeting. Upgrades to the room were visibly needed but also Cummins explained that during the last few years, the school's results during literacy testing were declining to a record low this year of 52 per cent. "If more students had access to current reading materials such as books, newspapers and magazines, they would be better equipped at reading and writing assignments," said Cummins. "Our current library's resources are definitely not supporting the 403 students that attend Seaway."

It was council member Lisa Casselman who suggested 100 Men of South Dundas. The council put together a proposal featuring the current room as well as the goals for the future. The display and presentation, clearly worked.

The room will have updated literature and seating areas, as well as new technology. It will also act as a place for overflowing classrooms to access for much needed work space.

"It feels so amazing to have been chosen!" said Cummins. "The experience was nerve wracking, exciting and incredibly humbling. The fact that these gentlemen came together not only to help a cause but to learn about the different causes in our community is so commendable."

The council must still meet to determine how to begin the project and work is still necessary to raise the remaining $20,000 of the expected $30,000, Cummins said they are hoping to be finished by December 2019.

The 100 Men of South Dundas have made a significant impact on two local organizations and it was all in one night. "Thank you, thank you, thank you," said Lewis after the event. "There is no place better than South Dundas. This community is amazing to me."

Lewis said 100 Men North Dundas committee member Eric Duncan was a "huge help and came in with great wisdom." Lewis said Duncan provided the committee with insight into what worked and what did not from the recent North Dundas event. Lewis also recognized the hard work from committee and volunteer members, Jack Barkley, John Glead, Perry Scott, Jim Millard, Wally Baker, Chuck Irine and Scott Corden.

"Let's make it even bigger next year!" Lewis concluded.

ARE THERE HEROES IN YOUR HOME?

CARBON MONOXIDE ALARMS SAVE LIVES

WHAT'S THE RISK?

Over 65% of all carbon monoxide (CO) deaths & injuries in Ontario occur in homes.

Many homes in Ontario have on average 4-6 fuel-burning appliances that produce CO:

- fireplace
- stove
- gas dryer
- water heater
- furnace
- portable fuel heater

WHAT CAN ALARMS DO?

Only working CO alarms give you the warning of the presence of CO you need to keep your family safe.

Exposure to CO can cause flu-like symptoms.

If your CO alarm sounds and you or other occupants suffer from symptoms of CO poisoning, get everyone out of the home immediately. Call 9-1-1 or your emergency number from outside the building.

HOW DO I PROTECT MY FAMILY?

- ❖ Ensure all fuel-burning appliances and vents are inspected annually. Find a registered contractor at cosafety.ca.
- ❖ Install CO alarms outside all sleeping areas if your home has a fuel-burning appliance, fireplace or attached garage.
- ❖ For best protection, install CO alarms on every storey of the home.
- ❖ Test CO alarms monthly and change the batteries at least once a year. Replace alarms according to manufacturers' recommendations.

North Stormont Fire Services open house

Gauvin was pleased with the turnout at the event during which the announcement and introduction of a new Junior Firefighter Program in North Stormont was made as well as the introduction of the North Stormont Junior Fire Safety ambassador Bradley Sullivan of Moose Creek.

Sullivan is an eight-year-old resident of Moose Creek who "has been fascinated with firemen and has been a firefighter for Halloween for the past six years", with his parents commenting in a NSFS press release how he has wanted "to be a firefighter since he was old enough to talk".

During the open house Sullivan received a "badge, new gear and a dress shirt". Guidelines for the volunteer position include educational and parental approval requirements, participation in fundraising events, parades as well as meetings, fire safety/prevention events and they must "report directly to the fire prevention officer in the Fire Prevention Division of North Stormont Fire Service for assignments and activities."

The Junior Firefighter Program in North Stormont is open to residents between the ages of 14 to 18. It is designed to allow the local youth an opportunity to accumulate volunteer hours while becoming acquainted with municipal fire services, opening a door to becoming a firefighter in the future.

Chief Gauvin mentioned he does not know of any other SDG municipality currently offering the Junior Firefighter Program which is modelled on similar programs available in the U.S. Gauvin explained that successful applicants will be working at the fire station in their community and that he hopes to have two members of the JFP at each station in the municipality.

Application forms for this program are currently available at the township office in Berwick and Gauvin expects application forms will soon be available online. Requirements for the volunteer positions include parental approval, academic standard requirement and in some cases a criminal background check.

In May of this year, Darren Lische and Alain Aubin were appointed public education officers in North Stormont joining fire prevention officer Nancy Ann Gauthier in educating residents in fire prevention. Gauthier mentioned Lische and Aubin are great additions to the team with strong abilities in public speaking and social media, respectively.

Gauthier also announced the creation of a French and English language banner featuring three North Stormont firefighters for the North Stormont Fire Services. They were on display during the open house with Gauthier commenting there were plans for an additional banner featuring Sparky.

All in all, it was a busy few hours at Fire Station No. 4 during the event and was perhaps best summed up by chief Gauvin in the North Stormont Fire Service press release when he stated: "Open houses give families and businesses the chance to meet their local firefighters and tour the station that serves their homes and properties."

Rockin' and rollin' for a whole year

Walking through the doors of Rockin' Rhonda's, you'll be greeted with a blast from the past of '50s memorabilia decorated around the building from pictures of Elvis Presley to old-fashioned waitress outfits. Rockin' Rhonda's opened exactly one year ago from Sat., Nov. 10 and owner Rhonda Guindon said that they were welcomed with open arms in the community. Senior girls' basketball finals

Makenna Brownlee

Tagwi Report

This year Tagwi's Senior girls' basketball team finished off the regular season with an undefeated record against all 'A' schools in SDG, which placed them first. Throughout the season they grew as a team, became closer friends and expanded their skills in basketball. On Thurs. Nov. 8, Tagwi hosted the SDG 'A' semifinals and finals. The second and third place teams would play each other, then first against fourth. Charlan finished in second and played Glengarry, who finished in third. It was a well played game for both teams but Glengarry came out on top. Then in the next semi-final game, Tagwi, who finished first, played North Dundas, who finished fourth. It was a back and forth game throughout all four quarters, but in the end, Tagwi finished the game with a victory. The final game was played at 2 p.m. between Glengarry and Tagwi, to see who would win the SDG championship and who would move on to EOSSA next week. Both teams were playing the best basketball they could play, wanting to move on and become champions very badly. In the end Glengarry came out on top and won the finals with a score of 32-27. They will be playing in EOSSA on Thursday and Friday of this week. Best of luck to the Gaels as the representative of SDG.

Junior girls' basketball – EOSSAA bound

It has been eight years since the Junior girls' basketball team has won the SDG championships. This year's team played a fantastic game at home on Thurs., Nov. 8. They won against St. Lawrence 34-14, and beat Glengarry 51-24. Today (Wed., Nov. 14), the team will be playing at EOSSAA. Good luck girls! Sadly, the Senior girls didn't have the same luck, losing against Tagwi by two points in a 40-38 loss. Good season girls!

While the girls were fiercely playing, other students and staff were lounging around in their PJ's in the spirit of Pyjama Day!

Last Fri., Nov. 9, North Dundas held our annual Remembrance Day Ceremony. A huge thank you goes to Mr. Bell and Mr. Reaney. We could not have had such a wonderful ceremony without their passion and time put into it. A massive thank you goes to the piper and the Winchester and Chesterville legions, who were integral parts of our ceremony. Lest we forget.

Mon., Nov 12 was our annual Junior Achievement Awards. Students were recognized for their academic, volunteer, and leadership achievements. Congratulations to all award winners!

Tomorrow (Thurs., Nov 15) is Throwback Thursday. Throwback to the 90's, 80's, yesterday, whatever your imagination desires! Next Tues., Nov. 20 is Tie Dye Tuesday. Gather some friends this weekend and have a tie dye party and sport your creations!

Lastly, prom committee is hosting a Spaghetti Dinner and Cake Auction on Thurs., Nov. 22. The dinner will be held in the cafeteria at 4:30 p.m., and the cake auction will take place at 6:30 p.m. in the gym. Tickets are being sold for $10 for people over the age of 10, and $5 for children under 10. Tickets can be purchased from any graduating student or the office. Your support would mean a lot to us!

Mont Houy Howitzer

Does anybody out there know anything about a WWI Howitzer cannon that may or may not have been dropped off in Russell almost 100 years ago?

As Morley Verdier told at the meeting of the Russell & District Historical Society Monday night, he'd sure like to find evidence of the big gun's arrival here... if it exists. Residing in Embrun, Morley is an amateur historian with an avid interest in all things wartime, particularly as they impact the area he now calls home.

He was the guest speaker at the society meeting, speaking on the topic "Remembrance in Russell Township", about how the practice originated, on local customs, ceremonies, and Cenotaphs. As for the howitzer, he doesn't expect that it'll suddenly turn up out behind somebody's barn... but maybe there's a picture in somebody's scrapbook.

He didn't dwell on the fate of the wartime enemy weapon. He discussed the everyday impact of the "War to End All Wars", including details such as how agriculture suffered with not enough men left behind to handle the crops. He talked about returning veterans grouping into associations because they had each other's backs on the battle front and civilians didn't understand what they had suffered.

Eventually, the plethora of veterans' groups merged into one organization which became the Royal Canadian Legion with the primary objective of forming a unified voice to lobby the government for training, jobs and health services... to remember the sacrifice. The iconic poppy became the public symbol of remembrance in 1921; by 1926, three million poppies were circulating.

But where's the Russell howitzer? Morley has a copy of a manifest indicating the WWI "trophy" arrived in Russell via the New York Central Railway in October of 1920. For those newcomers who don't know, for more than half a century, the NYC passed through Russell along what is now the fitness trail with several daily stops at the local station. That's logically how the gun would have gotten here.

However, there's another, contradictory note on the manifest: "Not likely to be in this community." Did the oversized trophy get here or not? If it did, did it remain here? Those are the questions Morley would like answered. Interestingly, the same record also indicates the location near Mont Houy, France, where the Howitzer was salvaged after WWI hostilities ceased 100 years ago as of Nov. 11.

Back then, the Canadian Corps captured thousands of enemy machine guns, artillery pieces and other weapons, war trophies which were tangible representations of victory as well as valuable personal souvenirs. Formations overrunning enemy positions had often chalked identifiers on enemy guns to mark their successes. Hundreds of pieces came back to Canada with returning troops; they could actually influence reputations, promotions, and granting of honours and awards.

At the end of the Great War, Sir Arthur Doughty, Dominion Archivist, was named controller of war trophies, and charged with bringing them back to Canada. Thousands of trophies ended up in Ottawa without a permanent home. In early 1920, the Canadian government's official collection consisted of 516 big guns, 304 trench mortars, 3,500 light and heavy machine-guns, and 44 aircraft.

Initial plans for a national war museum to house this collection and other artifacts were delayed or ignored. The collection remained with the Dominion Archives which, swamped, was soon sending pieces across Canada in response to requests from various communities, veterans groups, military units, and schools; cities and military bases displayed the larger trophies in parks or near prominent buildings.

Acquired in the burst or patriotic enthusiasm that marked the immediate post-war period, many trophies gradually deteriorated and were removed; during WWII, hundreds were donated to scrap metal drives, recycled into the latest war effort, incorporating former German weapons against the new Nazi enemy. If it did arrive and remain here, WWII salvage could have been the fate of the Russell Howitzer, Morley suggests.

The Canadian War Museum reopened in 1942, decades after it closed in the late 19th Century; most of the museum's current collection of WWI enemy guns, mortars, machine-guns and small arms originates with the war trophy program. Smaller collections also survive in museums across Canada, as part of official memorials, and in civic buildings.

But where's the Mont Houy Howitzer? Morley plans to continue his research in hopes of some day solving the perplexing riddle.

Dundas Manor is ready!

WINCHESTER — For more than four years, the Dundas Manor board of directors has been working with residents, families, staff members and the local community to plan for the new Dundas Manor. It will transform the look and feel of the residence to create a truly home-like environment where they can also welcome thirty additional residents.

"We welcomed the recent provincial government announcements regarding new long-term beds in Ontario but were disappointed to not be included in this first round of new beds," noted Bill Smirle, board chair. "So, we continue to work with ministry officials to share one important message - we are ready!"

In fact, the preliminary designs for Winchester's new long-term care home are complete, with input from residents and families. The new home will improve quality of life with more accessible space and larger windows. Outdated four-bed rooms will change to two. And the new home will also address the need for greater individualized and resident-directed care.

"Our goal is to create a modern, comfortable and restorative place for residents to live," explains administrator Susan Poirier. "Long-term care homes are truly people's homes. We are excited to be planning a new home while still retaining the cozy, country feel that Dundas Manor is known for. Our residents deserve nothing less."

"We want to thank our local communities and community partners for their support of our new home," sums up Smirle. "We hope to hear good news from the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care very soon - so we can all celebrate together."

Parmalat Group announces acquisition of Kraft Heinz Canadian natural cheese division

INGLESIDE – As of Nov. 6, Parmalat has reached an agreement to acquire the natural cheese division of Kraft Heinz Canada in a transaction valued at $1.62-billion.

The transaction, if approved, would mean that Parmalat Canada will take on stewardship of iconic Kraft Heinz Canada cheese brands: Cracker Barrel, P'tit Quebec and aMOOza!

Since 1881, Parmalat Canada has been producing natural cheese and if this acquisition is approved, the processing plant in Ingleside and its almost 400 employees will be included.

The press release explains: "Parmalat Group and Parmalat Canada is uniquely positioned for this transaction as natural cheese is the core of our business. The transaction is a significant investment in Canadian dairy and is a vote of confidence in Canada's dairy industry that will provide important benefits to Canada.

"If approved, the transaction will secure and grow cheese production in the country and make Parmalat Canada a more competitive company which will help secure employment and support the incomes of dairy farms.

"Each of the brands, in both our portfolio and soon to be acquired, will remain distinct, with their own unique consumer appeal. Each will remain both active and vitally important to our company.

"The transaction, coupled with further planned investment, is expected to produce synergies with the existing Parmalat Canada manufacturing and distribution network which in turn could lower costs, will protect jobs and support dairy farm incomes.

"The Ingleside plant fits well into our current network and helps expand our operations in Eastern Canada. Along with our existing processing facilities in Winchester and Belleville and Victoriaville, Que. (all three of which will remain open post the closing of this transaction), we are well positioned for future growth. Parmalat Canada can use the new Ingleside site to improve efficiencies and business growth with brands being acquired having wide recognition."

"Today's announcement speaks volumes about our drive to support dairy farmers, help the local economy and continue to build on our family tradition of cheese making," said Mark Taylor, Parmalat CEO and president. "We are excited to work closely with the community and our stakeholders to ensure we can grow sustainably and help Canada's natural cheese business thrive. Parmalat's brands in Canada date back as far as 1881 (Balderson). This deep-rooted heritage in Canada makes the proposed transaction a logical step for us as we seek to make an even more significant economic and social contribution in Canada."

Holiday Train returns Nov. 28

FINCH – The Holiday Train will be returning to North Stormont on Nov. 28 at 2:30 p.m. This year’s entertainment will include Terri Clark, Sierra Noble and Kelly Prescott. The Holiday Train, now in its 20th year, travels across parts of the northern United States and across Canada collecting food and raising funds for local food banks. Over the past 20 years, more than $14.5-million has been raised and 4.3 million pounds of food collected.

The Holiday Train first stopped in Finch in 2015, thanks to the lobbying of Canadian Pacific by outgoing deputy mayor Bill McGimpsey. “I am very proud and excited that the Canadian Pacific Holiday Train will be stopping in our community once again this year for the fourth time. The CP Holiday Train brings awareness to some of these issues and generously contributes. Not only that but they bring headliner entertainers to our community in the process. In a village of 600 people, it is amazing to have Terri Clark, Sierra Noble and Kelly Prescott put on a performance for us. I hope people will come from far and wide and donate to help to continue to support our local food banks.”

Over the past three years, the Holiday Train has brought in $6,549 in financial contributions from the community and approximately 8,820 pounds of food. Canadian Pacific has contributed $9,000 over the past three years as well.

“The Community Food Share continues to be grateful for this wonderful partnership that has been developed with Canadian Pacific and the Holiday Train,” said Ian McKelvie, administrator for the Community Food Share. “What a wonderful way to bring members of the community together to celebrate the holiday spirit while raising awareness and support for local food banks.”

Mayor-elect Jim Wert is looking forward to another successful year. “It is events like the Holiday Train that help put small towns like Finch on the map. It is great to see the community come together year after year to listen to some home grown Canadian talent while raising food, funds and awareness for the Community Food Share.”

Attendees to the event are encouraged to bring food and cash donations to support the Community Food Share. Food donation drop off centres are available at the North Stormont Arena, North Stormont Place, Monkland Community Centre and the North Stormont Township Office.

For a full list of what food items to donate or to make a financial contribution online, please visit www.communityfoodshare.ca.

The Community Food Share is a not for profit organizations that serves Dundas and Stormont Counties. With two food cupboards in North Stormont, one in Finch and one in Crysler, the Community Food Share continues to provide food access support to local residents. The Community Food Share provides services to approximately 165 households every month, representing 500 individuals.

Buying local this holiday season

Kalynn Sawyer Helmer
Record Staff

With the holiday season just around the corner, shoppers will be hitting the stores to find good deals and the perfect gifts for their friends and family. While shopping this season, keep in mind that shopping at local independent stores not only helps the local economy but also can improve health and relationships.

In fact, the benefits on the local economy can have significant effects by creating a healthy local supply chain and supporting families. In 2013 a study by Civic Economics called Independent BC: Small Business and the British Columbia Economy, took a look at independent retailers versus corporate chain stores. It found that “BC independent retailers and restaurants together recirculate more than 2.6 times as much revenue in the local economy as chain competitors. For retailers, locals recirculate 45 per cent compared to just 17 per cent for chains. For restaurants, locals recirculate 65 per cent compared to just 30 per cent for chains.”

While the study was conducted in BC, the results can be applied to towns across Canada and even the U.S. This study along with a Utah study in 2012, Maine in 2011, New Orleans in 2009 among others, all found that local businesses recirculate more of every dollar made back into the local economy. This occurs by creating local supply chains and more investment in the local employees.

This recirculation happens through multipliers. The B.C. study explains: “There are three types of effects measured with a multiplier: the direct, the indirect, and the induced effects. The direct effect is the known or predicted change in the local economy that is to be studied. In this case, that is the change in retail sales. The indirect effect is the business to business transactions required to satisfy the direct effect. Finally, the induced effect is derived from local spending on goods and services by people working to satisfy the direct and indirect effects.”

The conclusions of the work indicated that “a shift of just 10 per cent of the market from chains to independents would produce 31,000 jobs paying $940-million in annual wages to BC workers.”

If this methodology is applied to the local and independent retailers in eastern Ontario, the results are sure to be similar.

Not to mention, that shopping local can help a community to grow by allowing more independent businesses the opportunity to open, give people incentive to live in a vibrant community and many times offer quality locally supplied products.

Consider shopping locally, not only for this holiday season, but for as many shopping needs in the day-to-day as well.

On behalf of Canada

A well attended Remembrance Day Ceremony was held at Hillcrest Cemetery near Newington during the afternoon of Nov. 11. Stormont Dundas and Glengarry Member of Parliament Guy Lauzon laid the first wreath on behalf of the Government of Canada at the event.

"And at the going down of the sun"

As the sun set on Nov. 11, friends and congregational members of St. Clare's Anglican Church in North Dundas prepare to participate in the Bell of Peace commemorative event. This event was a Canada-wide initiative by the Royal Canadian Legion to have bells rung 100 times at sunset to commemorate the centennial of the Armistice which was signed on Nov. 11, 1918 ending the First World War. The bell used at St. Clare's Anglican in Winchester, was once housed in the steeple of Holy Trinity Anglican and had a foundry date of 1906, which led to speculation that it could have rung out the peace in Nov. 1918. During a community potluck supper at St. Clare's following the local Bell of Peace event, Alice Ouderkirk of Chesterville mentioned the peal of bells from St. Clare's was heard in the distance by people who had gathered at Sweets Corner Park in Winchester to listen to the bells of Winchester United and St. Paul's Presbyterian.

Remembering Judy Barkley's contributions to Williamsburg Library

Carolyn Thompson Goddard
Record Correspondent

WILLIAMSBURG — Despite the cold and blustering weather outside, inside the Williamsburg Branch of the SDG County Library, there was plenty of warmth as over 50 friends and family of the late Judy Barkley gathered to dedicate a bench in her memory on Nov. 10.

Marilyn Strader of Williamsburg, who serves as the treasurer for the Friends of the Williamsburg Library organization told the Chesterville Record, that Judy Barkley was a "much loved founding member" of the Friends of the Williamsburg Library.

Strader continued, that a selection of books for the library as well as the memorial bench were purchased with funds donated in Barkley's memory after her passing two years ago. A second red bench was purchased by the Municipality of South Dundas with both benches located at the end of a brick walkway to the right of the library building providing a comfortable space for people of all ages.

Marj VanderVeen said she remembered: "Judy always treated me as her own little doll, couldn't have had a better sister and I really miss going out for coffee with her." Barkley's daughter Jaime Casselman commented it was great to

Two new red benches were dedicated on Nov. 10 near the Williamsburg Branch of the SDG County Library in J.C. Whitteker Park. see the local community coming out and supporting the local library before expressing with pride saying, "mom worked very hard to keep it going".

A few feet behind the Barkley Memorial bench is a Crimson King maple tree which according to Williamsburg Women's Institute president Lynn Gilmour, "was planted by the Stormont-Dundas Women's Institute to commemorate the 120th anniversary of the Women's Institute and the 150th anniversary of Canada." The Stormont-Dundas Women's Institute has branches in Chesterville and Williamsburg carrying on a tradition of community service and education that begun by Adelaide Hoodless in 1897.

South Dundas Mayor Evonne Delegarde, who is currently serving as the chair of the SDG Library Board, commented in a post event email to the Chesterville Record, "it is wonderful that the collaboration between the Friends group, the Women's Institute, the community and the municipality has resulted in a beautiful and peaceful sitting area for many to enjoy." Delegarde explained how Ben MacPherson, SD director of recreation and facilities had "coordinated and planned the project with both groups taking into consideration options for future donations and/or additions."

The municipality "purchased the second red bench; and paid for the installation of the benches and the interlocking stone pathway; repairs to the eavestrough and parking lot; and minimal landscaping."

This newly dedicated area in the J.C. Whitteker Park adjacent to the Williamsburg Library will provide generations to come with the opportunity to rest for a moment or two in a serene surrounding.

Ravens' Junior boys win championship

Nick Longval
Special to the Record

RUSSELL—The St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic High School Ravens' Junior six-on-six football is a fast and exciting sport. Many schools are transitioning to this to allow schools to participate in tackle football. St. Thomas Aquinas Ravens went into the last regular season game against the undefeated St. Joseph Catholic Secondary School Panthers from Cornwall.

This game would determine who would host the championship game. In cold, wet weather the Ravens were victorious and went onto host the Panther's in the league final. Once again the Ravens met the Panthers in a winner take all championship final.

The Ravens scored with the running success of Brock Ballantyne and Ryan Stinton. Aiden Harps managed the ball with timely fakes and key first down runs. The defence was anchored with excellent tackling and key plays by Jacob Verspeek, Charlie Aylward and Jaiden Longval.

The Ravens took the game 26-13 winning the championship for their second consecutive year. The Ravens finished the season with a perfect 10-0 record. The boys scored 269 points for and 79 points against.

Small town author nominated for international award

Kory Glover
Record Staff

LONG SAULT – Local children's author, Troy Guindon is one of five Canadians on a list of 246 candidates who has been nominated to win the 2019 Astrid Lindgren Memorial Award – along with a $5-million cash prize.

However, despite being honoured to have even been nominated for such a prestigious award, Guindon says that he's keeping a realistic frame of mind about his chances of winning.

"While my first book may have won 35 awards, both nationally and internationally, this [award] is completely in a league of itself," he said. "It's not that I'm being modest but there are only 246 nominations out of 64 countries. It's amazing to be part of that group but the people that win this in the past tend to have 20 to 25 books out, translated into different languages. I'm not remotely in that category yet, I'd like to be someday but I'm a realist."

Working for many years with the Upper Canada District School Board, adult education and the Mohawk board, Guindon wanted to make a dream, a reality. He finally sat down and starting writing his first children's book, The Reading Promise.

"My wife really pushed me to follow this dream that I had," he said. "I didn't want to look back on my life 20 or 25 years from now and wonder what could have been. So, I finally put all my energy into writing this book and it was published in July of 2014.

Guindon has published two books since 2014, The Reading Promise and Stinky Blinky. One a very personal story about encouraging reading with youth groups, and the other a comedic look at what happens if you eat too much cheese and beans.

"The Reading Promise was really inspired by my wife because, believe it or not, my wife was the one who read to our children far more often than me. She read to them religiously from the youngest age," he said. "It was my oldest son, I think he was six or seven at the time and my wife was reading to him and I had just so happened to be walking down the hall, and I heard him asking all kinds of questions about what she was reading. I remember hearing my wife talking and explaining some things and she was really good about it because she actually used books as an opportunity to teach our children what values she wanted to teach them."

Guindon continued, "I thought that was a really cool way to do it; you can't just sit a child down and tell them they have to do this and that but you can use examples from books and create conversations. When I saw her doing this, I wondered if I can actually capture that in a book and that's what I did with The Reading Promise."

With such a wholesome and relevant message, Guindon was a perfect candidate for nomination because the award honours writers like Astrid Lindgren who combine artistic integrity and commitment to the rights of young people to promote interest in children's and young adult literature.

The winner of the 2019 Astrid Lindgren Memorial Award will be announced on Oct. 11, 2019.

Lest we forget, 100 years later

Kory Glover

RUSSELL – On Nov. 11, 1918, the Armistice was signed as an agreement of the warring parties to stop the bloodshed and end the First World War.

Exactly 100 years later, townships like Russell and Embrun are still honouring those who fought so valiantly for the freedom that Canadians live by today.

People of both Russell and Embrun gathered Sun., Nov. 11, to give their thanks to the brave soldiers of not just the First World War and Second World War, but also the Korean War, the Iraq War and all of the men and women who continue to serve Canada to this day.

“Today’s ceremony is special because it marks the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice on Nov. 11, 1918. More than 650,000 Canadians served in the war with over 170,000 wounded and 66,000 who lost their lives serving their country,” said MP Francis Drouin, addressing the Russell crowd. “On Nov. 11, 1918, the Canadian Corps headquarters received a message at 6:30 a.m., that an Armistice would be declared at 11 a.m. Despite this message, Canadian troops continued to push forward to reach a line eight kilometres northeast of Mons in Europe. This is a testament to the dedication to those who wore the uniform, they didn’t ask why, they didn’t hesitate, they just fought until the war was at peace.”

Russell township Mayor Pierre Leroux, was in attendance to both ceremonies, giving his thanks to the troops in attendance at the event.

“We are united in our remembrance of those who volunteered to defend us, those brave men and women who decided that what made this nation so great was worth fighting for,” he said. “They made the ultimate sacrifice so that every single one of us can live in the country that allows us to be different, to have different views and opinions, to have the ability to disagree with one another without fear of repercussions.”

Local Embrun volunteer and president of Friends for Life, Marie Claire Ivanski, laid a wreath in dedication for all the volunteer work in the area and the work her organization has done for breast cancer research.

“We had a great turnout. I think Russell’s ceremony was a little bit bigger because they have the legion but we still have a very caring community. It was a very beautiful ceremony,” she said. “It’s been a couple of years that I’ve laid a wreath and it’s something that I hold very near and dear to my heart because it’s something I always attend.”

After each of the ceremonies, light refreshments were made available to the public involving light snacks, sandwiches and soup.

Couple collaborates on preserving wartime artifacts

RUSSELL – When she discovered her husband-to-be was a compulsive collector of military artifacts, Barbara Matthews was only too happy to join him rather than try to beat him.

An educator with an interest in history, Matthews now helps husband Armed Forces Master Warrant Officer Dan Ferland organize his massive collection, going as far as to dress in period uniform when they’re hosting a public display.

That’s what Ottawa-based Ferland and Matthews did on Remembrance Day, setting up several tables laden with wartime memorabilia in the main hall of the Russell Legion where participants gathered for lunch after the annual ceremony at the Cenotaph which honours area residents who gave their lives in the First and Second World Wars.

Ferland describes himself as a “big boy scout” with an insatiable interest in military materials dating back to the First World War, everything from weapons and gear, to photos and documents, to oddities such as art sculpted from brass howitzer shells. He doesn’t collect vehicles because he has no place to store them.

Decked out in a coarse First World War uniform, Ferland said he has no idea how many items he has purchased with his own money and keeps in various locations including his basement. While he doesn’t have a total, he said he knows almost unerringly where each piece is kept and can go right to it as required when mounting a display.

Matthews backs him up, doing an impromptu impersonation of her husband searching out part of his collection. She’s turned out in an authentic Second World War uniform of the Canadian Women’s Army Corps authorized in 1941 in order to release men from non-combatant roles in the war effort such as secretaries, cooks and mechanics.

“As an indication of what an impact this had at the time, the uniform won first prize at a Paris fashion show when it was first introduced.”

Ferland said he started acquiring wartime keepsakes after attending a small ceremony at Vimy Ridge in 1985 where he heard two French kids wonder allowed what was going on. He determined then and there he’d do his bit to help preserve the memory of the World Wars and not let it fade into obscurity.

Kin Club fundraising on tap at Étienne Brûlé

RUSSELL – There’s a new beer in town and it sports that familiar Kin Club red as dominant label colour. In fact, the organic brew is called Kin Club Red and was devised as a fundraising partnership between Russell Kin and Embrun’s Étienne Brûlé Brewery.

Described by Kin beer connoisseur Doug Anthony as “red, malty, with caramel and nutty flavour” the beer got a low level launch Nov. 3 when a regional Kin convention met in Russell Township. On hand for the convention, national executive director Grant Ferron proclaimed the KC Red “delicious”.

The Club Red will get a full-blown kick off Nov. 21 during a video dance party at the brewery, with all beer lovers welcome 6-11 p.m. Admission is free with guests urged to wear red.

For every Kin Club Red sold on tap at the brewery bar on rue Notre Dame in the old fire hall, Étienne Brûlé will donate $1 back to the club’s various charities and projects, Anthony said. Just in time for Christmas shopping, the new beverage comes in attractive bottled gift packs, available at the brewery. And another tip: KC Red is the perfect match for the EB house chili.

Anthony thanked EB’s Richard Menard for his cooperation in the venture adding that, to his knowledge, no other Kin clubs have their own beer label: “I approached Richard with the idea and he made it happen. So far, sales have been great.”

While other Kin clubs may not yet be on board the custom beer bandwagon, it’s becoming a popular fundraising approach. The proliferation of local craft breweries across the province has made such partnerships attractive and relatively simple. As one example, a fundraising dance supporting the Shine Community Music Program at Lansdowne Park’s Craft Beer Market last Thursday night featured a red IPA paying $1 per draft back to the charity.

As one indicator of that proliferation, the value of craft beer sales in Ontario rose from $210 million in 2012 to $370 million last year. Many municipalities boast at least one craft brewery these days, with Russell Township enjoying the presence of two.

Russell Curling Club donates to local charities

RUSSELL — The 21st Michel Malboeuf Bonspiel took place on Sat., Nov.10 at the Russell Curling Club. It was a great success again this year with the club's 64 players and 30 to 40 friends who came to support them.

A record total of $3,116 was raised which was divided between two local charities. Good Neighbours Food Bank and Embrun Family Centre received their donations from the Russell Curling Club. The annual Bonspiel honours Michel Malboeuf who passed away in 2002. The two organizers Jean Dignard and Roger Gosselin thanked everyone for their generosity, volunteering and participation. "It feels so good to give back to our great communities," said Dignard.

The winning team of the bonspiel was Shawn Marley, Bridget Marley, Tia Marley and Jacob Marley.

Keeping up with STA

STA Report

STA held many victories last week in terms of sports. On Saturday (Nov. 3), Grade 9 student Rebecca Greer competed at OFSAA in Hamilton for cross country running, where she placed 96th out of 269 runners. "We're incredibly proud of her effort and dedication," states Mrs. Longval, teacher at STA. Junior girls basketball also obtained a victory on Monday (Nov. 5) during their semi-final game, also undefeated. Nonetheless, they were ultimately defeated in the finals on Wednesday (Nov.

7), but it was a small loss compared to the pride coach Mrs. Giesbrecht held for the girls' outstanding season. A big congratulations to the Junior boys' football team for winning the Eastern Ontario 6v6 Champions for the second year in a row, on Wednesday (Nov. 7), going undefeated throughout the season. They were persistent and determined to obtain victory against St-Joe's HS, concluding their season with a score of 29-13 in the final game. A huge thank you to coach Mr. Longval for the outstanding season. This past Friday (Nov. 9), STA held a Remembrance Day ceremony to honour and remember those who have served and continue to serve. Our very own cadets performed a flight party as part of the ceremony, and student Hannah Nadeau commemorated soldiers of war in a heartfelt and moving poem, thanking veterans for their service. They sacrificed their lives to grant us our freedom and as thanks we shall remember them.

Overall, this upcoming week is not relatively busy, with only report cards soon to be sent home. A new season of winter sports is now beginning as well. This includes Junior and Senior boys' basketball, varsity curling and Junior and Senior, boys' and girls' hockey. STA is looking forward to another great season and wish all our athletes good luck!

Remembrance Day

Freedom love and tranquility
We take these things for granted
But in a war with no security seeds of courage and hope must be planted
It takes much strength and bravery
To do what our soldiers did
And through the thoughts of fear and slavery from death they never hid
The red of a poppy symbolizes their blood
The black remind us of their sorrow
This teaches us to be if we could
Like the brave soldiers of tomorrow
So on the eleventh of November
We ask you to truly remember
That for though the war has ended
The loss that may never be mended
